imarketing.courses

CONTENTSYSTEM.AI

MODULE 2.1

The Time-Wasting Myths

Technical superstitions that sound like rules but are nothing more than wasted motion. Clear them out before you start.

imarketing.courses

MODULE 2.1

The Time-Wasting Myths

These are the technical superstitions. None of them are real, and chasing them is pure wasted motion.

MYTH

"You have to strip the metadata off every video before posting or it will not perform."

TRUTH | Metadata removers do nothing. It is fake. Posting works fine without it. Skip it entirely and never think about it again.

MYTH

"There is a magic posting time, and posting at the wrong hour will tank the video."

TRUTH | Posting times do not matter. You can post at 2 a.m. or 2 p.m. and it will not change whether a video goes viral. The algorithm decides distribution based on the content, not the clock. Post when it is convenient, and spread your posts out across the day for your own sanity, not because the timing affects views.

MYTH

"Reusing clips limits your reach or gets you flagged."

TRUTH | You can reuse clips. You can generate a small set of clips for a product and reuse them across many videos and still go viral. If a video underperforms, that is about the content, not about the fact that you reused a generated clip. This matters even more in AI organic, where your clips are generated assets you can reuse and recombine freely.

imarketing.courses

MYTH

"You need a foreign SIM card to target another country."

TRUTH | You do not. A VPN set to the country you want to target is all you need.

MYTH

"Running multiple accounts on the same product will get one of them shadowbanned."

TRUTH | Not true. You can run several accounts on the same product across platforms without a problem, and doing so is part of how you scale, covered later.

MYTH

"You need a fresh account every time you switch products or niches."

TRUTH | You can reuse accounts across niches. An account that ran one type of product can be reused for a completely different product in a different niche and still take off. Many experienced operators keep a set of accounts and simply cycle new products onto them.