Writing Viral Scripts

This is the part most people overcomplicate.

You don’t have to.

The reality is: AI can do almost all of the heavy lifting here.

Your job is to feed AI the right inputs.

Your Real Role: Pattern Recognition

Before writing anything, you need data.

What topics are working in your niche?
What themes are getting pushed?
What variations are exploding?

You are not guessing.
You are observing.

If you understand what’s already performing, you can load those patterns into AI and let it structure the script for you.

AI is extremely good at:

- formatting
- structuring escalation
- creating day-by-day sequences
- rewriting for pacing

But it needs direction.

That direction comes from research.

Spotting Viral Sub-Niches

This is extremely important.

Inside every niche, there are waves.

For example, as of today (27.02), the format:
“What if … in Ancient [XYZ]?”
is going massively viral.

When you see a pattern like that and multiple videos around it are performing well - that’s not random.

That’s a signal.

If 6–8 different creators are getting strong views on a similar angle, that means the topic resonates right now.

And you should move fast.

You don’t wait for trends to end.
You catch them early.

This applies to:

- specific historical periods
- specific professions
- specific story angles
- specific emotional tones

Sub-niches can rotate every few weeks.

If you don’t actively watch your niche, you’ll miss them.

AI Is the Tool - You Are the Filter

AI can generate hundreds of script variations.

But it doesn’t know what’s trending unless you tell it.

You collect:

- viral themes
- high-performing angles
- common hooks
- emotional tones

Then you feed that into AI and refine.

That’s the workflow.

Not:
“Let AI write something random”

But:
“Let AI structure what the market is already responding to”

Don’t Overthink the Writing

You don’t need to sit there writing dramatic monologues.

You need:

- a strong hook
- clear escalation
- clean pacing
- emotional progression

Everything else can be refined.

If your topic is strong, the script becomes easier.

If your topic is weak, no level of writing skill will save it.

That’s why the next section - Video Topic - is one of the most important in this entire blueprint.

Because topic selection drives performance more than writing style.

Script is king.

But topic is the battlefield.

And we’re about to break that down next.