Video Topic

If there's one thing that decides whether your video wins or dies, it's this:

Research.

You can guess.
You can try inventing completely original topics.
You can base ideas on trending real-world events like:

- Epstein's Island
- Popular Games like Minecraft, GTA VI etc.
- breaking news
- cultural moments

And yes, trying new angles instead of copying similar ones is important long-term.

But if you're new?

7 out of 10 of your "original ideas" probably won't land.

That's just reality.

So what's the smarter approach?

Research + AI.

Your Job: Observe the Niche

Your role isn't to guess what works.

It's to monitor what is already working.

You don't have to do this every single day, but I highly recommend checking in regularly. That's how you catch viral videos early.

When a new sub-format starts exploding, you want to be early, not late.

How to Track the Niche

Most accounts in this space don't even use hashtags. So how do you track trends?

We split it into TikTok and YouTube.

BONUS: Now you can track Skeleton YouTube and TikTok Videos with my tool created exclusively for my course students. Check section 4.3 NEW BONUS: Custom Research Tool

---

1 TikTok Research

TikTok is slightly easier because many creators use hashtags like:

#skeleton

Go to that hashtag.

Sort by:

- Most liked
- Recently posted (last week)

Now you're looking at the strongest performing Skeleton videos from the past 7 days.

Save them.

Look for:

- 1–2+ million views
- fast growth
- similar repeating themes

Second method:

Train your For You Page.

This is powerful.

1. Find several accounts in your niche.
2. Watch multiple of their videos fully.
3. Don't scroll early.
4. Like them.
5. Comment normally.
6. Save them.

Over time, TikTok will start feeding you more and more of that niche.

This builds a research-based FYP.

Once that happens:

- Don’t scroll away from those videos.
- Watch them fully.
- Save the good ones.

Your FYP becomes your research engine.

---

2 YouTube Research

On YouTube Shorts, most creators in this niche don’t use hashtags.

So you need a different method.

1. Subscribe to 5–10 channels in your niche.
2. Watch their Shorts fully.
3. Engage normally.

Over time, your Shorts feed and homepage will start showing similar content.

Important:

The YouTube homepage usually surfaces stronger-performing Shorts.

That makes it a very powerful signal source.

Also:

- Manually check those 5–10 channels.
- Look at their newest uploads.
- Check view counts.
- Look for videos above 1–2 million views.

What Counts as a “Good” Video?

In this niche, a strong-performing video is usually:

- 1–2+ million views

Unless:

It has several hundred thousand views but was uploaded only 1–2 hours ago.

That’s an outlier.

What Is an Outlier?

An outlier is a video that is performing significantly better than the creator’s usual average - especially in a short amount of time.

Example:
A channel normally gets 200k–500k views.
Suddenly one video hits 600k in 2 hours or 5 mln views in total.

That’s a signal.

Save it immediately.

Outliers often represent:

- new sub-trends
- new angles
- new hooks
- new emotional triggers

Those are opportunities.

Starter Channels (For Research)

Below you’ll find 10 channels in this niche to help you get started.

These are not channels you copy.

They are channels you study.

Look at:

- Their topics
- Their hooks
- Their pacing
- Their most viewed videos
- Their recent outliers

Use them to understand patterns - not to clone content.

1. https://www.youtube.com/@originico/shorts
2. https://www.youtube.com/@DD_Informer
3. https://www.youtube.com/@Bernard_Films
4. https://www.youtube.com/@mr_datavisuals

5. https://www.youtube.com/@dr_data_dr
6. https://www.youtube.com/@TheSkellyTimeline
7. https://www.youtube.com/@WhatifSkelly
8. https://www.youtube.com/@BoneExperiment
9. https://www.youtube.com/@H3lixSquar3d/shorts
10. https://www.youtube.com/@tomsjourne

Step-by-Step Workflow

Now let's say you've saved 5–10 videos from the past week that:

- Have 2+ million views
- Or are clear outliers

What next?

You extract the hooks.

The hook is usually:

- The first question
- The main "What if" line
- The core topic

Example:
"What if you lived in Ancient Greece?"
"What if you were born in medieval Europe?"

Copy 5–10–20 of these hooks.

Using AI

Now go to Claude AI.

(Personally, I use Claude for video topics and script writing. I highly recommend it. In my opinion it's the strongest for structured storytelling. If you don't have access, you can use Gemini or ChatGPT - but Claude is my go-to.)

Paste your collected hooks into Claude.

Then use this prompt:

Prompt (IMPORTANT):

“Based on the list of viral video topics I’m sending you, analyze why these specific hooks performed well. Identify the pattern behind them. Then generate 10 new video topics that follow the same psychological and structural pattern, but feel fresh. Prioritize ideas that have strong viral potential and could outperform the originals.”

Claude will generate new topic ideas.

From there:

- Pick the one you like most.
- Or ask Claude:
  “Which of these has the highest viral potential and why?”

Let AI help you filter.

You don’t have to rely on instinct alone.

Can You Use the Exact Same Topic as Another Channel?

Yes.

Especially if:

- The video has 5–10+ million views
- Or it’s a clear outlier
- Or the topic is genuinely strong

You are allowed to use the same topic.

You are not allowed to copy the full script. That can lead to copyright issues.

But copying the hook?
That’s normal.

You just need to be aware:

Some comments may accuse you of copying.

That’s fine.

Negative comments are not inherently bad.

As long as your script and execution are original, you’re safe.

Once you’ve selected your topic,

you move to the next stage:

Writing the Script.